Carolina Creations Receives Top Three Awards

Carolina Creations Junior Achievement Company sponsored by Carolina Mills displays awards won at banquet.

The 15th Annual Junior Achievement Future Unlimited Banquet was held on Tuesday, April 2, at the Holiday Inn in Hickory. The event was held to honor the students involved in the Junior Achievement program and to present awards for outstanding achievements for 1991-1992.

Junior Achievement is a national organization involving high school students with area businesses which sponsor the students in developing a company and manufacturing, marketing, and selling a product. Through the processes involved in Junior Achievement, students learn to overcome obstacles to be successful in the business field.

Carolina Creations, sponsored by Carolina Mills, won the top three awards for 1991-1992. The first of the three awards was the Best Junior Achievement Product which judging is based on sales, workmanship, difficulty, marketability, units produced, originality and appearance. Carolina Creations' product was a casserole dish and holder. The second award was Best Managed Company Award. This award is based on points given weekly and quarterly on attendance, sales, finance, board meetings, wall charts, and safety. The last award but certainly not least was the Junior Achievement Company of the Year for 1991-1992. The most prestigious award for a Junior Achievement company is based on sales, attendance, retention, company record systems, profitability and community involvement. Other awards won by Carolina Creations' Achievers are as follows:

About the Cover . . .

The annual Quarter Century Plus Club will be held on May 16 at the First United Methodist Church fellowship hall in Newton. Twenty-four new members will be inducted into the group and receive gold watches honoring them for 25 years of continuous service with Carolina Mills.

Student to Attend Girls State Event

Carolina Mills is proud to be sponsoring Leah Dagenhardt who will be attending Tar Heel Girls State this summer on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Tar Heel Girls State was begun in 1940 by the American Legion Auxiliary to provide an opportunity to study and practice citizenship in a democracy. For more than 50 years, the program has developed a sense of the responsibility of citizenship within young women leaders.

Miss Dagenhardt is the daughter of Steve and Rene Williams and Scott and Robin Dagenhardt. Steve Williams is employed with Carolina Mills as an overhauler. She is also the granddaughter of Shuford Campbell, Mail Courier for Carolina Mills. She is a member of East Maiden Baptist Church, where she is active in the youth choir, Acteens and the youth group. Her school activities include the Science Club, SADD, Student Council, FCA, Library Club, and Spanish Club. She is a member of the softball and volleyball teams. Also, she is involved in Junior Leadership Catawba and Natural Helpers.

Congressman Calls to Apologize

Leonard Helton, the crusading Stanley textile worker, says he received a telephone call Wednesday from an apologetic Congressman Dan Rostenkowski.

The powerful chairman of the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee called Helton at home Wednesday night.

Rostenkowski said he regretted that only one committee member showed up to hear Helton's February speech during a scheduled hearing on the state of the U.S. economy.

"He thanked me for coming up to Washington and said he had read the draft of my speech," Helton said. "I was sort of stunned he called me. I asked him twice if it was really him."

Helton said Rostenkowski asked him what he thought Congress should do to improve the economy.

Push harder for tax relief for average wage earners, Helton answered.

A Democratic tax cut measure vetoed by President Bush last month included a permanent tax increase for upper income Americans.

Helton, 48, has worked in textiles all his life.

He now works as a yarn packer at American & Efird's Rush plant in Mount Holly. He was invited to speak at the Ways and Means committee hearing after phoning his views into a television talk show.

When only one member of the committee showed up to hear him, residents of Gaston County — many of them fellow textile workers — rallied behind Helton.

More than 6,800 people signed petitions demanding an apology from Rostenkowski.

Helton's Congressman, Rep. Cass Ballenger, presented the petitions to Rostenkowski's office.

"I think that's what it was that made him call," Helton said.

Helton says he will continue his crusade for tax relief and for stricter limits on textile imports.

"We still need to get some sort of tax relief for the middle class and some restrictions on imports that are taking American jobs away," he said.

Helton said he had called Rostenkowski's office as recently as last week to ask the Congressman for a debate.

"I asked if we could sit down, man-to-man with the media present, and see if we can get this thing behind us," Helton said.

There may not have been anyone else present, but Helton did get the chairman's ear.

Ross Perot for President?

Recently, a petition has been put into circulation to place Ross Perot on the November ballot for President. Following is an article taken from the Hickory Daily Record, April 19, 1992 issue stating Mr. Perot's viewpoints:

Ross Perot's views don't fit convenient categories and he sometimes bristles when pressed for details. But a perspective Perot platform is beginning to emerge as the Texas billionaire sounds more and more like a presidential contender.

His views on specific issues range the political spectrum.

He is a strong supporter of the military but was an outspoken critic of the Persian Gulf War.

He supports abortion rights and favors some form of gun control.

He's a long time critic of government inefficiency and advocates a constitutional amendment for a balanced federal budget.

Perot is such a mixed bag on issues that both Republicans and Democrats are claiming he will siphon votes from the other party.

And recent exit polls in primary states suggest they both may be right — Perot drew support from disaffected voters in both parties.

Perot has said he'll run for the president as an independent candidate if supporters get his name on the ballot in all 50 states — a process well under way.

Here are some of Perot's views:

THE DEFICIT: He claims he could wipe out $400 billion annual deficit by eliminating $180 billion in fraud, waste and abuse; saving $100 billion through more efficient income-tax collections; persuading allies to reimburse $100 billion for the cost of defending Europe, Asia, and saving a final $20 billion by taking Social Security and Medicare away from rich people who don't need it.

THE NATIONAL DEBT: Eliminating the annual deficit is "the easy one," he says. To chip away at the $4 trillion national debt, "We've got to stabilize the job base, and then we've got to go to a growing industrial base in order to have the taxes to cover future needs."

BALANCED BUDGET: He says there should be a new Gramm-Rudman law "with no loopholes" to end deficit spending. he would also support a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget.

TAXES: He says the nation needs "a new tax system fast" but is vague on details. He favors retaining the tax on capital gains but thinks rates should be different for investments in businesses and investments in securities.

A letter concerning Mr. Perot's candidacy and petitions have been posted at each plant giving every employee the choice to read and sign the petition. Signing the petition only means you would like to see Mr. Perot's name on the November President ballot, not that you have to vote for him.

Gamma Beta Phi Society Accepts New Member

Lynn Triplett, CM Furniture

Lynn Triplett, Administrative Secretary at CM Furniture, has been accepted in to the Gamma Beta Phi Society at CVCC. She was selected because she has attained a scholastic ranking within the top 20% of her class. Lynn is attending CVCC to obtain a degree in Business Administration, and will graduate in the spring of 1993.

The Gamma Beta Phi Society is an honor and service organization for students in colleges and universities in the United States. Its objectives are to recognize and encourage excellence in education, to promote the development of leadership ability and character in its members, and to foster, disseminate, and improve education through appropriate service projects.

Lynn will be inducted into the Gamma Beta Phi Society at an induction ceremony held in the CVCC auditorium on April 25.

Safety Awareness at Plant No. 4

Willie Farley, Day 2 at Plant No. 4N, practices using a fire extinguisher in the event of a fire.

Fire drills and fire safety have been going on at Plant No. 4. January was fire safety month for Plant No. 4C and February was fire safety month for Plant No. 4N.

Fire equipment has been updated, videos done on evacuations along with fire drills at both plants. Fire safety teams on all shifts were being shown how to help if needed in a fire or emergency.

Each employee including the office employees had to use the fire extinguisher.

National Employee Health & Fitness Day Wednesday, May 13

Carolina Mills employees at the Main office will have a chance to participate in the National Employee Health & Fitness Day on Wednesday, May 13. To show their awareness and the importance of health and fitness, the employees will participate in a one mile walk before office hours. Each employee that participates in the walk can purchase a t-shirt to wear on that day.

Exercise Do's and Don'ts

Starting a new exercise plan can be confusing these days. Much of what you read regarding exercise is highly technical or seemingly contradictory. In simplified form, the following guidelines offer an exercise plan that can get you going in the right direction for life.

Do ...get a medical checkup before starting an exercise program, especially if you are over 35, have a history of illness or have been leading a sedentary lifestyle.

Don't ...make major abrupt changes in your activity level. Work slowly and gradually to achieve your goals.

Do ...have fun with whatever you do.

Don't ...try to keep up with a friend or partner who has been performing an activity longer than you, or who performs at a much faster or more intense level.

Do ...engage in moderate to vigorous activity three times a week, with sessions lasting 20 to 40 minutes.

Don't ...discount your body's signs of distress (labored breathing, chest pains, dizziness or any acute pain).

Do ...develop friendships with others who enjoy being active.

Don't ...get into a rut. Overdoing the same sport or exercise can l e a d to boredom, injuries and feelings of dread.

Do ...set goals for health and fitness improvement and revise them every few weeks.

Don't ...lose your momentum. It's harder to start over than it is to keep on with your regular routine.

Do ...reward yourself with something tangible for participating in your workouts regularly.

Don't ...become a fanatic. Stay balanced. Be consistent and moderate, and add variety to your routine.

Do ...remember, if you can't complete a full workout, at least do something. For instance, go for a walk, ride your bike around the neighborhood for 5 minutes, or do a few simple stretches.

Don't ...become injured or ill as a result of your program. Know when to take it easy or even change your usual pattern of exercise.

We sincerely thank all of the mothers we have working with us. You're the greatest!

It's a well-known fact that having a family and a job creates a demanding style of life. The rewards are many, but the hassles are many as well.

If you are a mother with children still at home, we do appreciate your efforts on the job. We couldn't do it without you.

If you have already raised your children, and they are on their own, we honor you for a job well done, both in your personal and professional life. We need you.

Happy Mother's Day to each and every one.

Credit Union

Credit Union Members Reap What They Sow.

People take pride in their accomplishments. In North Carolina, 1.2 million people have that kind of pride in credit unions. A credit union is owned by its members and provides the financial services they want and need... like low-interest loans. At other financial institutions, profits benefit stockholders. In credit unions, profit is not for building empires, but is returned to members as dividends and low-interest rates. Discover the quiet superiority of credit unions... the safe, solid financial alternative.
